thing at once it will grow worse, and sent in their theatres these immoral exhibitions will not be able to satisfy their peculiar public with mere stage representations. They will find themselves obliged to have parades through the audiences such as were frequently given in the old days when vaudeville houses were called variety theatres and when platforms were built over the audiences for the Amazonian marches. "Indecent plays," continued Mr. Er. langer, "will be presented in theatres by some managers as long as there is public that will patronize them, and if the people of this city do not want to have the stage of New York fall lower than that of Paris, vigorous action should be taken at once.

"There is one good, however, that has resulted from the production of indecent plays, and intelligent dramatic writers ought to take note of the fact that those who produce them do so for the sake of the sensation and the profit that may result. Art is clean, and no man is going to stoop to the presentation of an indecent play for the sake

Managers Have a Remedy. "I am very happy to state that none of the people connected with our firm is an offender in this respect. Speaking for Mr. Klaw and myself. I can say that our names have never been connected with an indecent play and never will be. "The remedy lies in the hands of the managers themselves," declared Mr. Erlanger, "and in fairness I must state that in this particular case the newspapers are handicapped, because the more publicity they give to the exploitation of an indecent play the better it pays the indecent manager who presents it.

"Managers can correct the abuse by shutting their doors to these plays when they present themselves outside of New York. So far as Klaw & Erlanger are, concerned, we will furnish our own remedy-we will not give them a chance to get into our theatre. There is no good reason why the managers of this country, who have enfored fourteen years of great prosperity, should stoop to this sort of thing. "The greatest danger does not lie with the musical plays because they are not taken seriously and they draw a different class of people from the plays presented in the regular theatres to which the women and children of this city

"It seems strange to me that Anthony Comstock, who was so energetic when the poor secretary of the Art League issued a catalogue containing a picture of a nude figure, should fall into such a somnolent state when the Salome dancers appeared.

"The managers of this country," went on Mr. Klaw, "should be more particular than those anywhere else on the globe, because in America the bulk of the theatregoers are young people. In hard bump.
